

NPA WALK BUNDEENA TO MARLEY HEAD

MAY 23RD 2017

The entire party collected and distributed into cars at Bundeena Wharf, we then headed to Eric Street to begin the short walk to Marley Head (and back), a distance of about 8km. It was a delightful day.

We were met with a back hoe operating along the road side. The area was covered in mulch and soon we learnt that a sewer line had been put in and there would be (by June 8th) a temporary toilet block in place for the northern end of the Coast track. I am sure that the neighbours will be pleased.

And so we began the day, hopeful of finding whales. Now Gary swears he saw a blow while we were at the Water Run. The rest of us are not sure. There were many splashes of diving gannets at that site. In any case none of the rest of us saw it.

At least we saw lots of New Holland Honeyeaters.

And another juvenile White Bellied Sea Eagle – with prey.

But if we were unsuccessful with wildlife at least we could try to interpret the geology!

And so, amidst lots and lots of people, I left what remained of my party to to take even more images while I bolted home.
