

2024—The year in Pictures

January

What lies within

Dividing the year into the months, within here are a series of photos that hint at the diversity of our unit-bound lives.

All photos are mine and I hope that the selection reflects a variety of styles and techniques as well as showing a little about our lives, but because this is a pictorial tour of 2024 some elements in our lives are missing. You won't get a hint of the breadth of reading, the novels, essays, short stories and poetry, that enrich us each and every day, even as my eyesight fades. Nor will you get any reference to the theatre or the live music we enjoyed. And I will resist my record of the many visits to art galleries. Suffice to say,, there is no life without the creative arts, so take that as a given, and come along on this journey.

It is a labour of love and a gift to you, in lieu of sending Christmas cards. My time is my own. It costs little beyond that. But it does allow me to transfer some of the money that would have been spent sending out waste paper into donations to worth causes.

May you enjoy this gift and be energised to face the trials and tribulations of 2025!

Brian (and Faye)

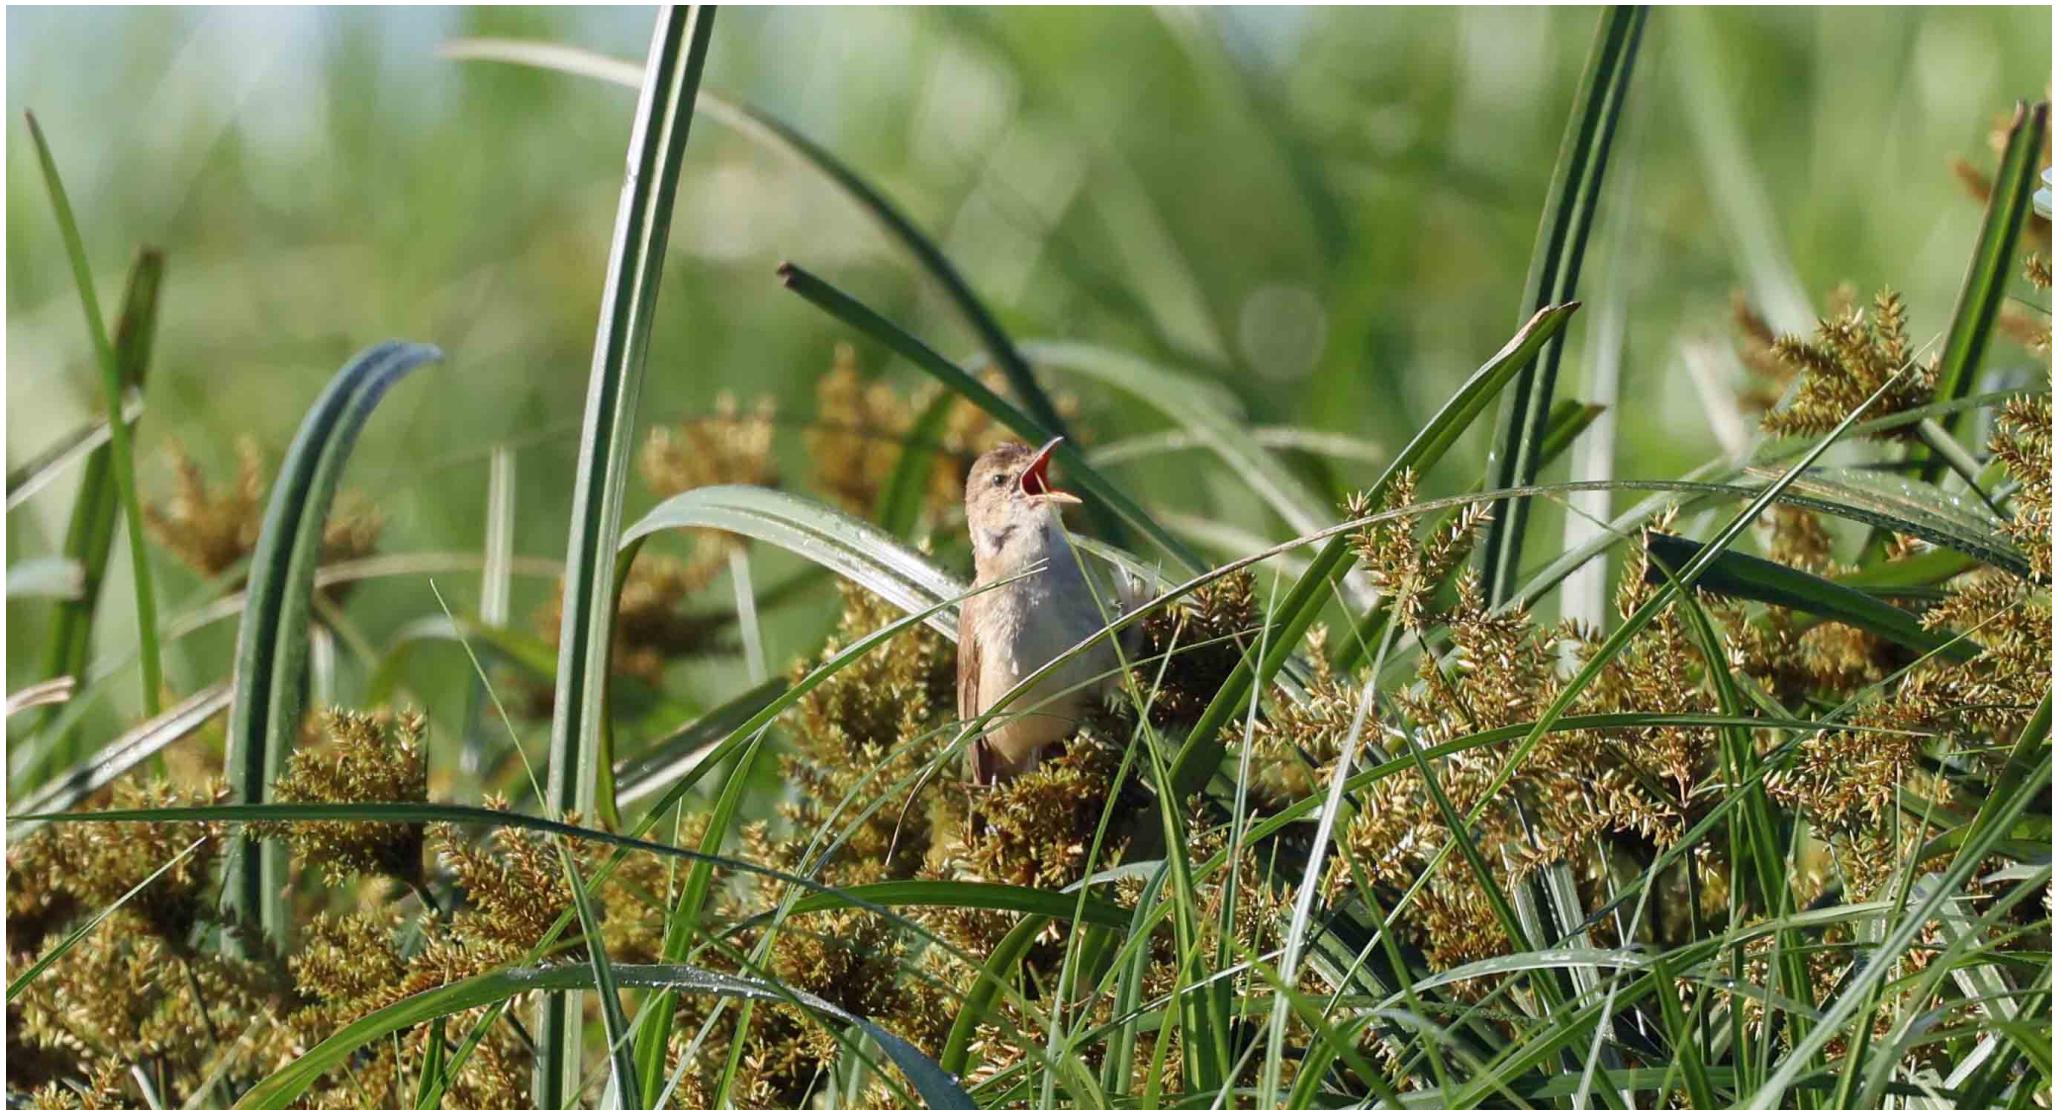

February

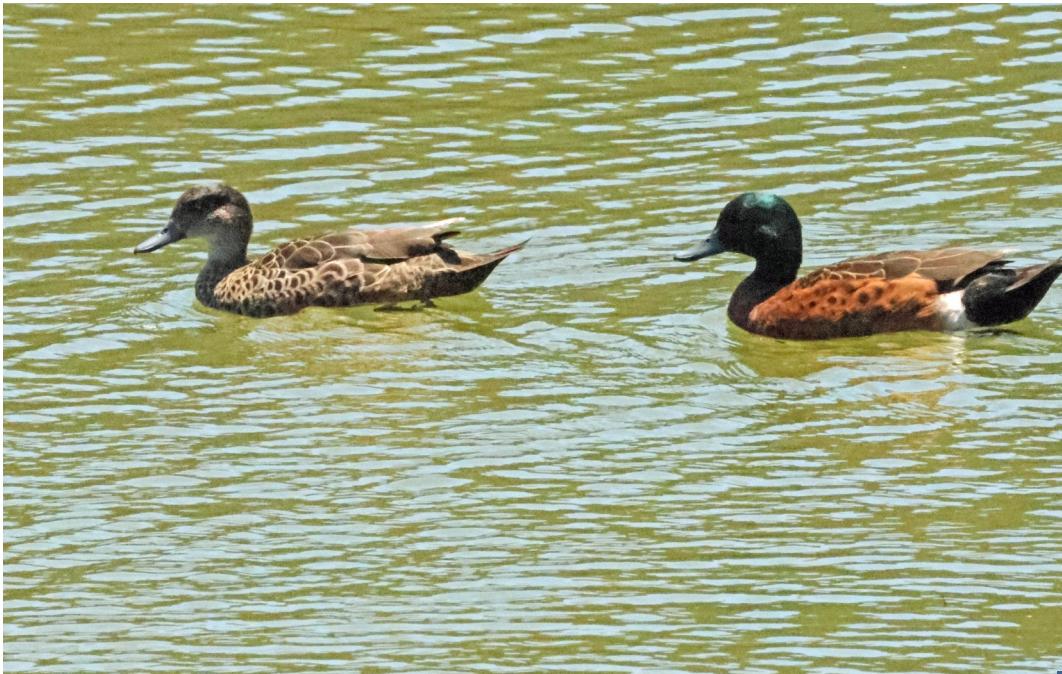

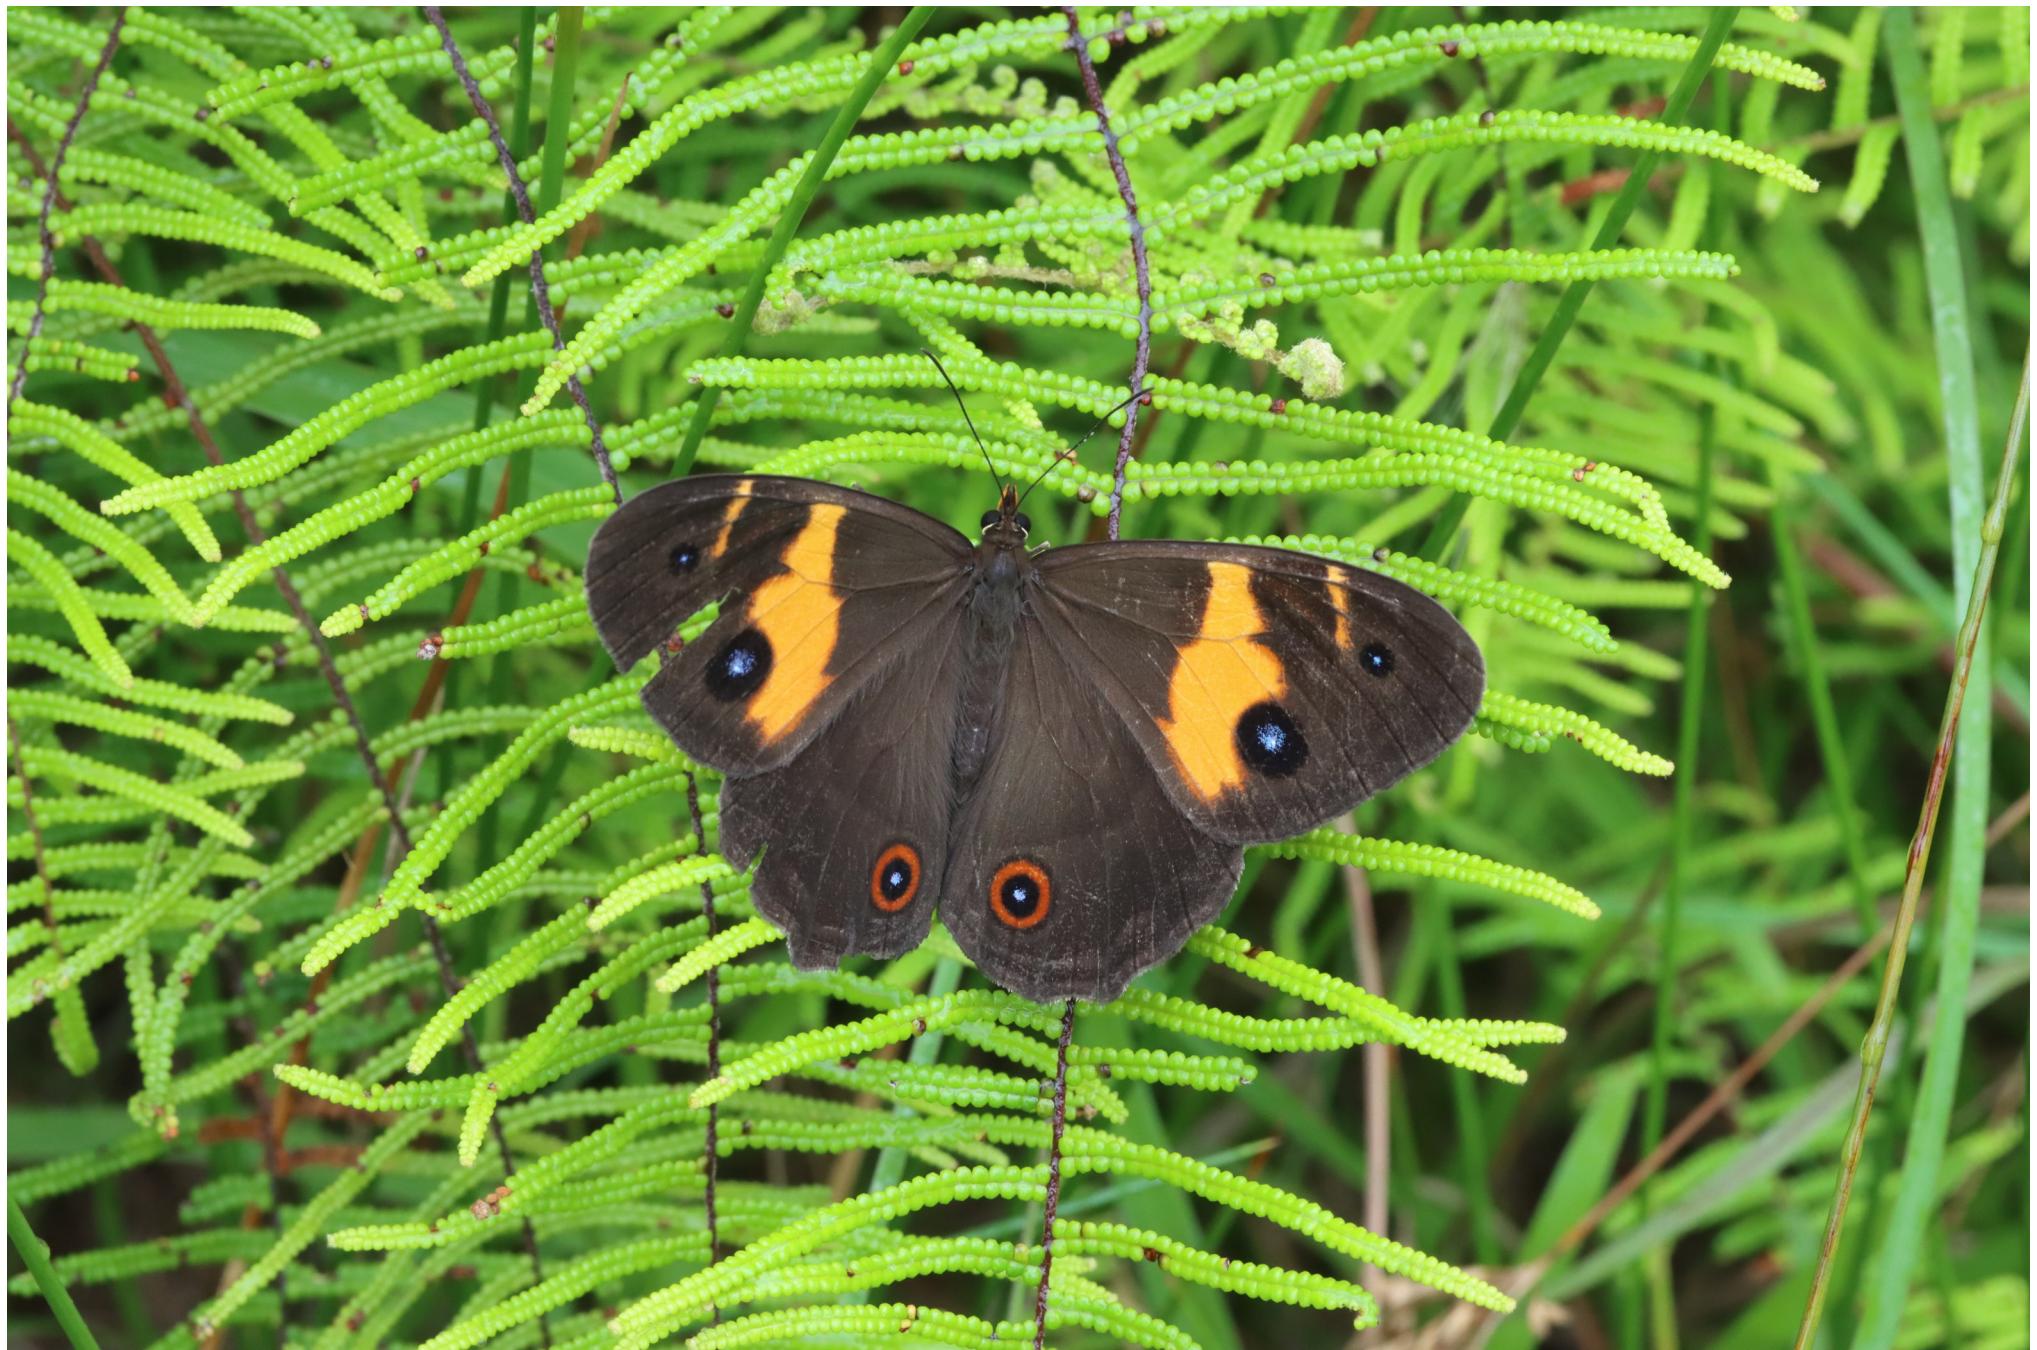

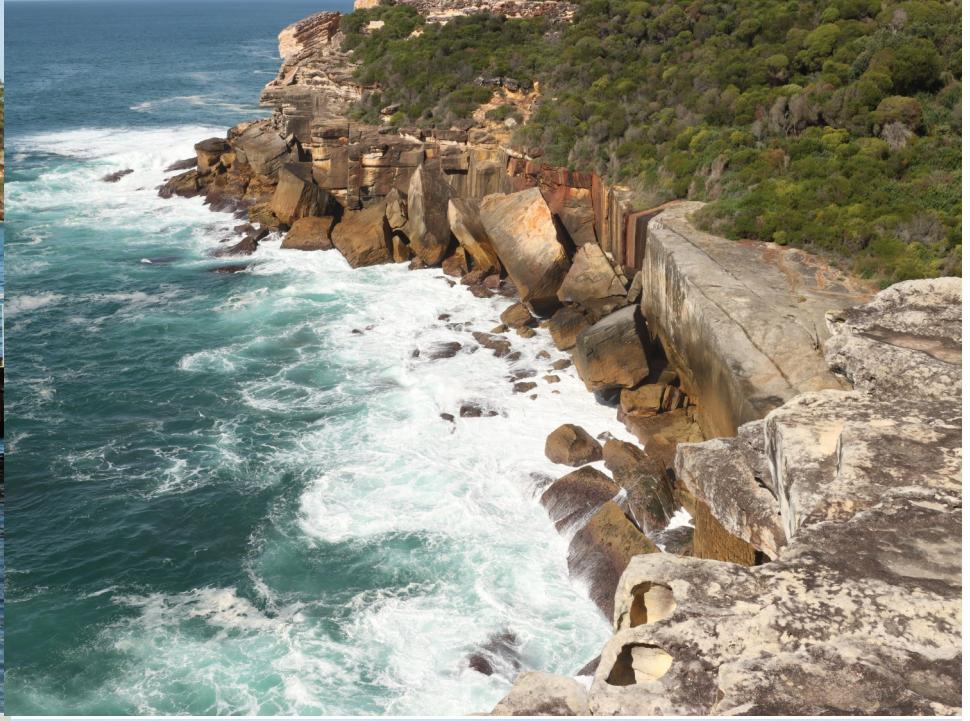

March

April

May

REMBRANDT

MURILLO

AND

AUGUSTUS AT NIMES.
W. REID DICK R.A. SC. 1922

THE SPLEURS OF WAR

THE SPLEURS OF WAR
THE FAITH OF MAN STAND FOREVER

June

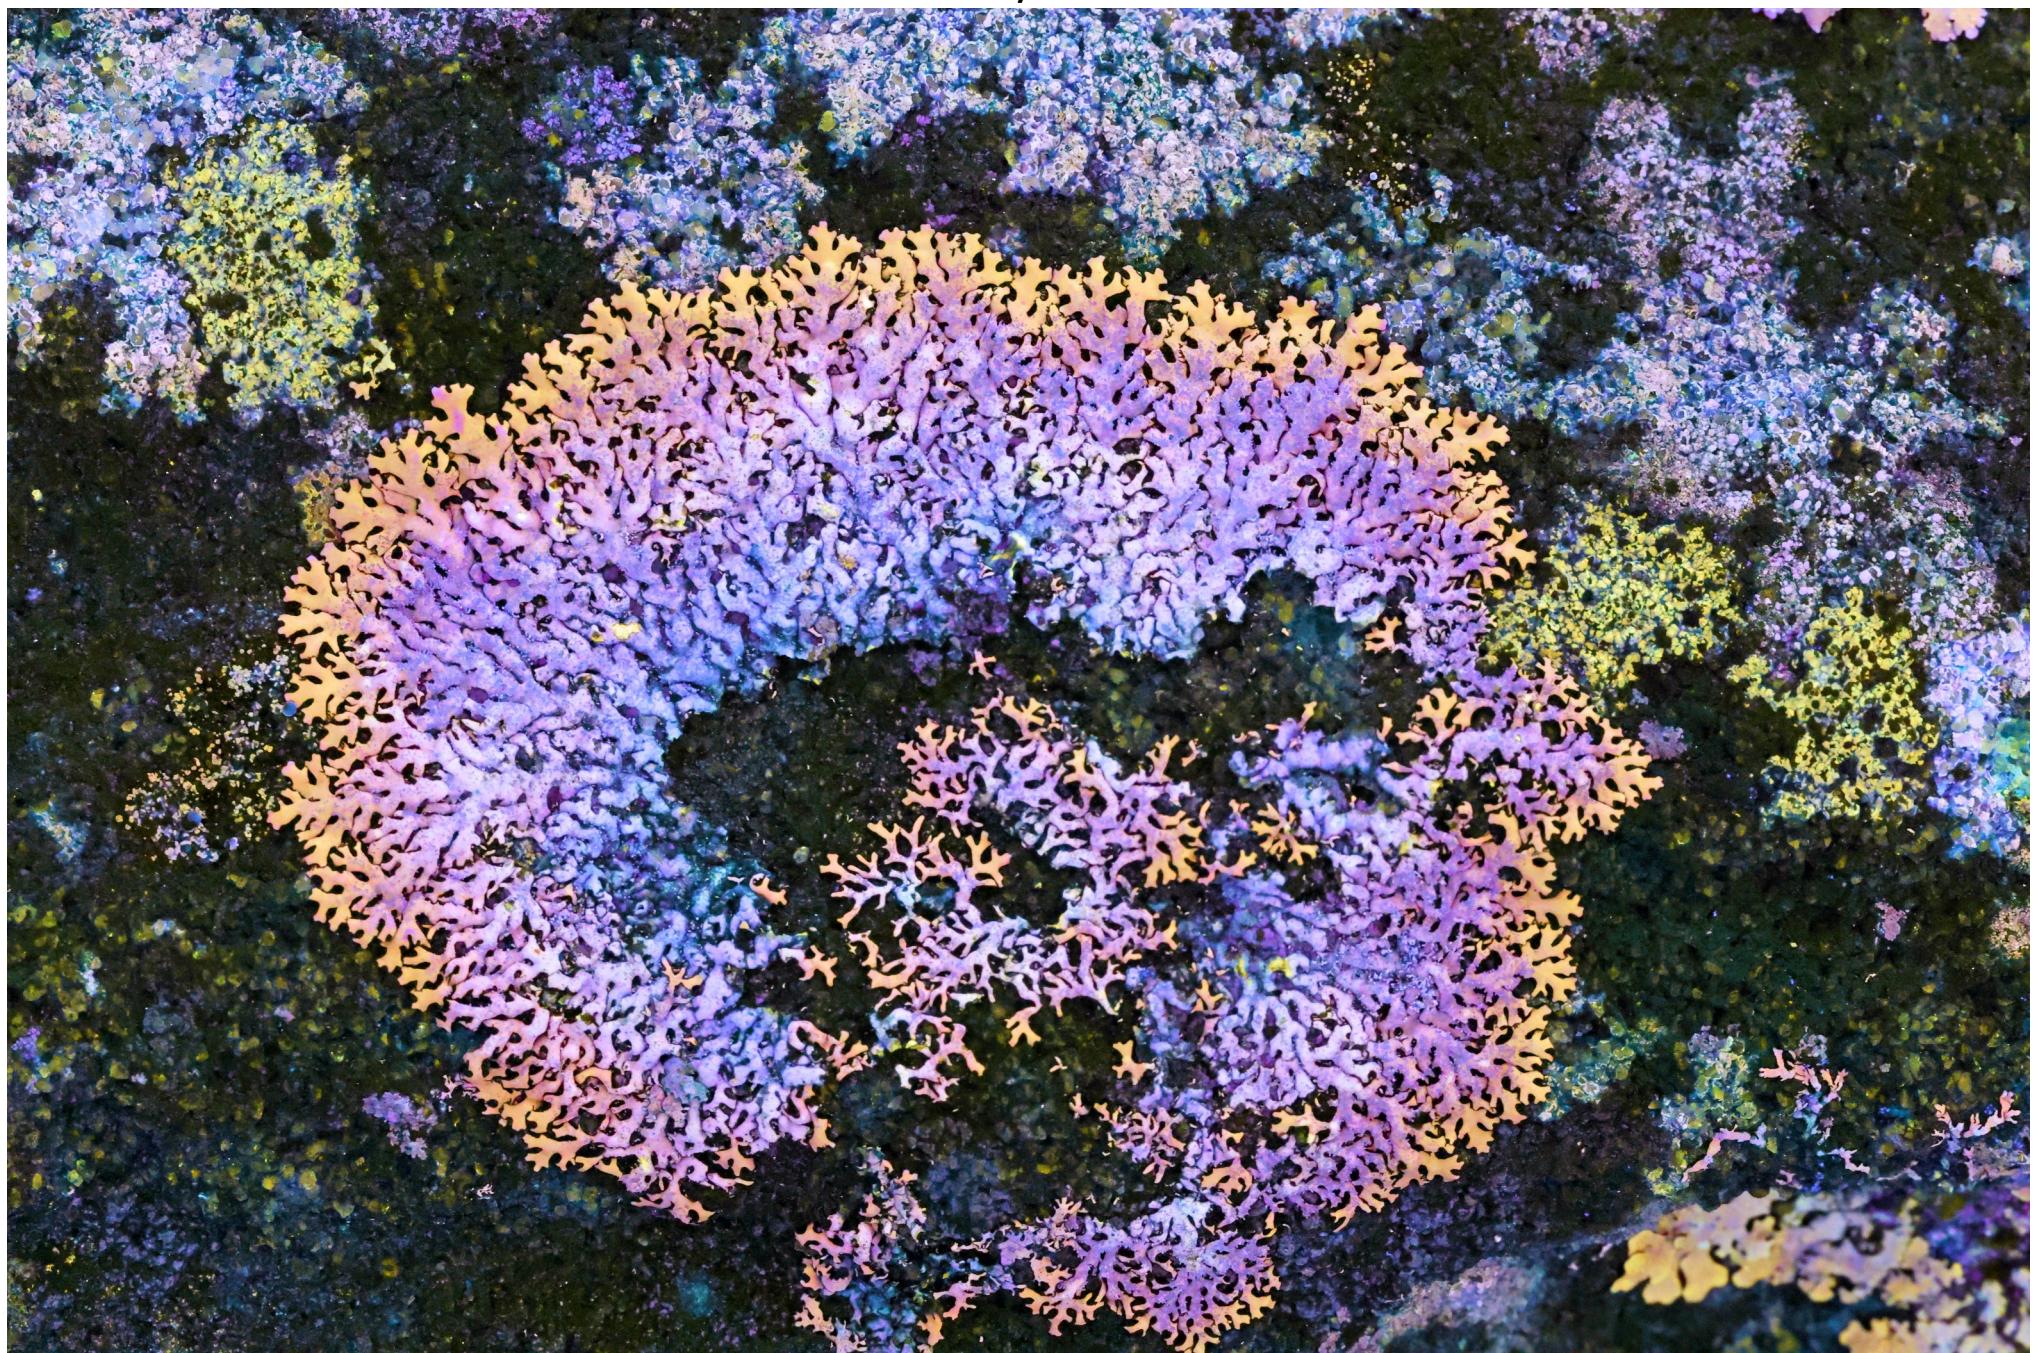

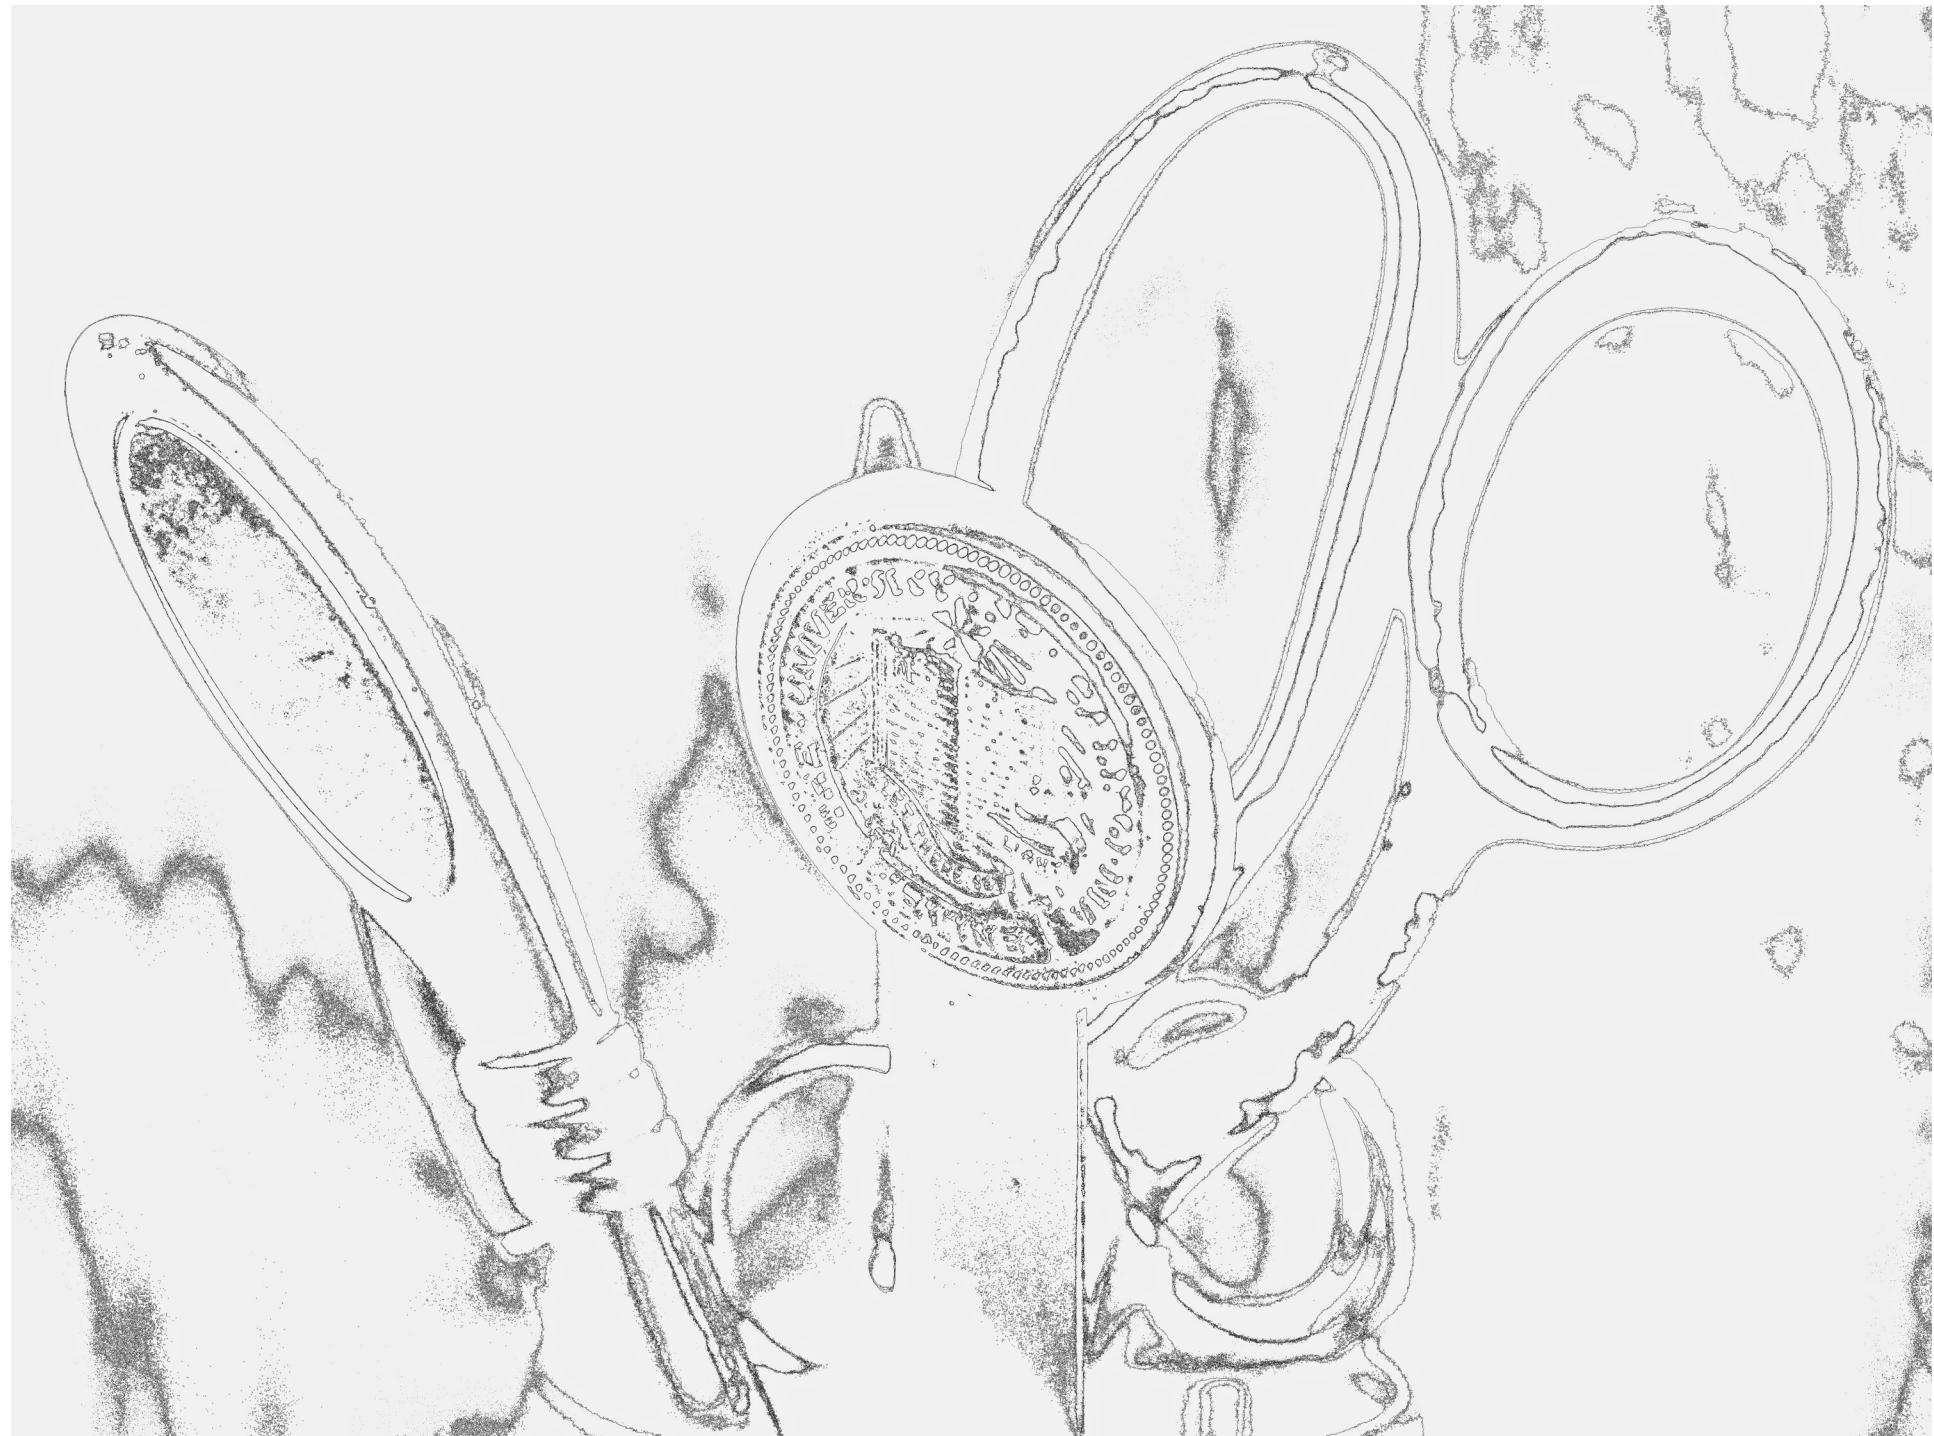

July

August

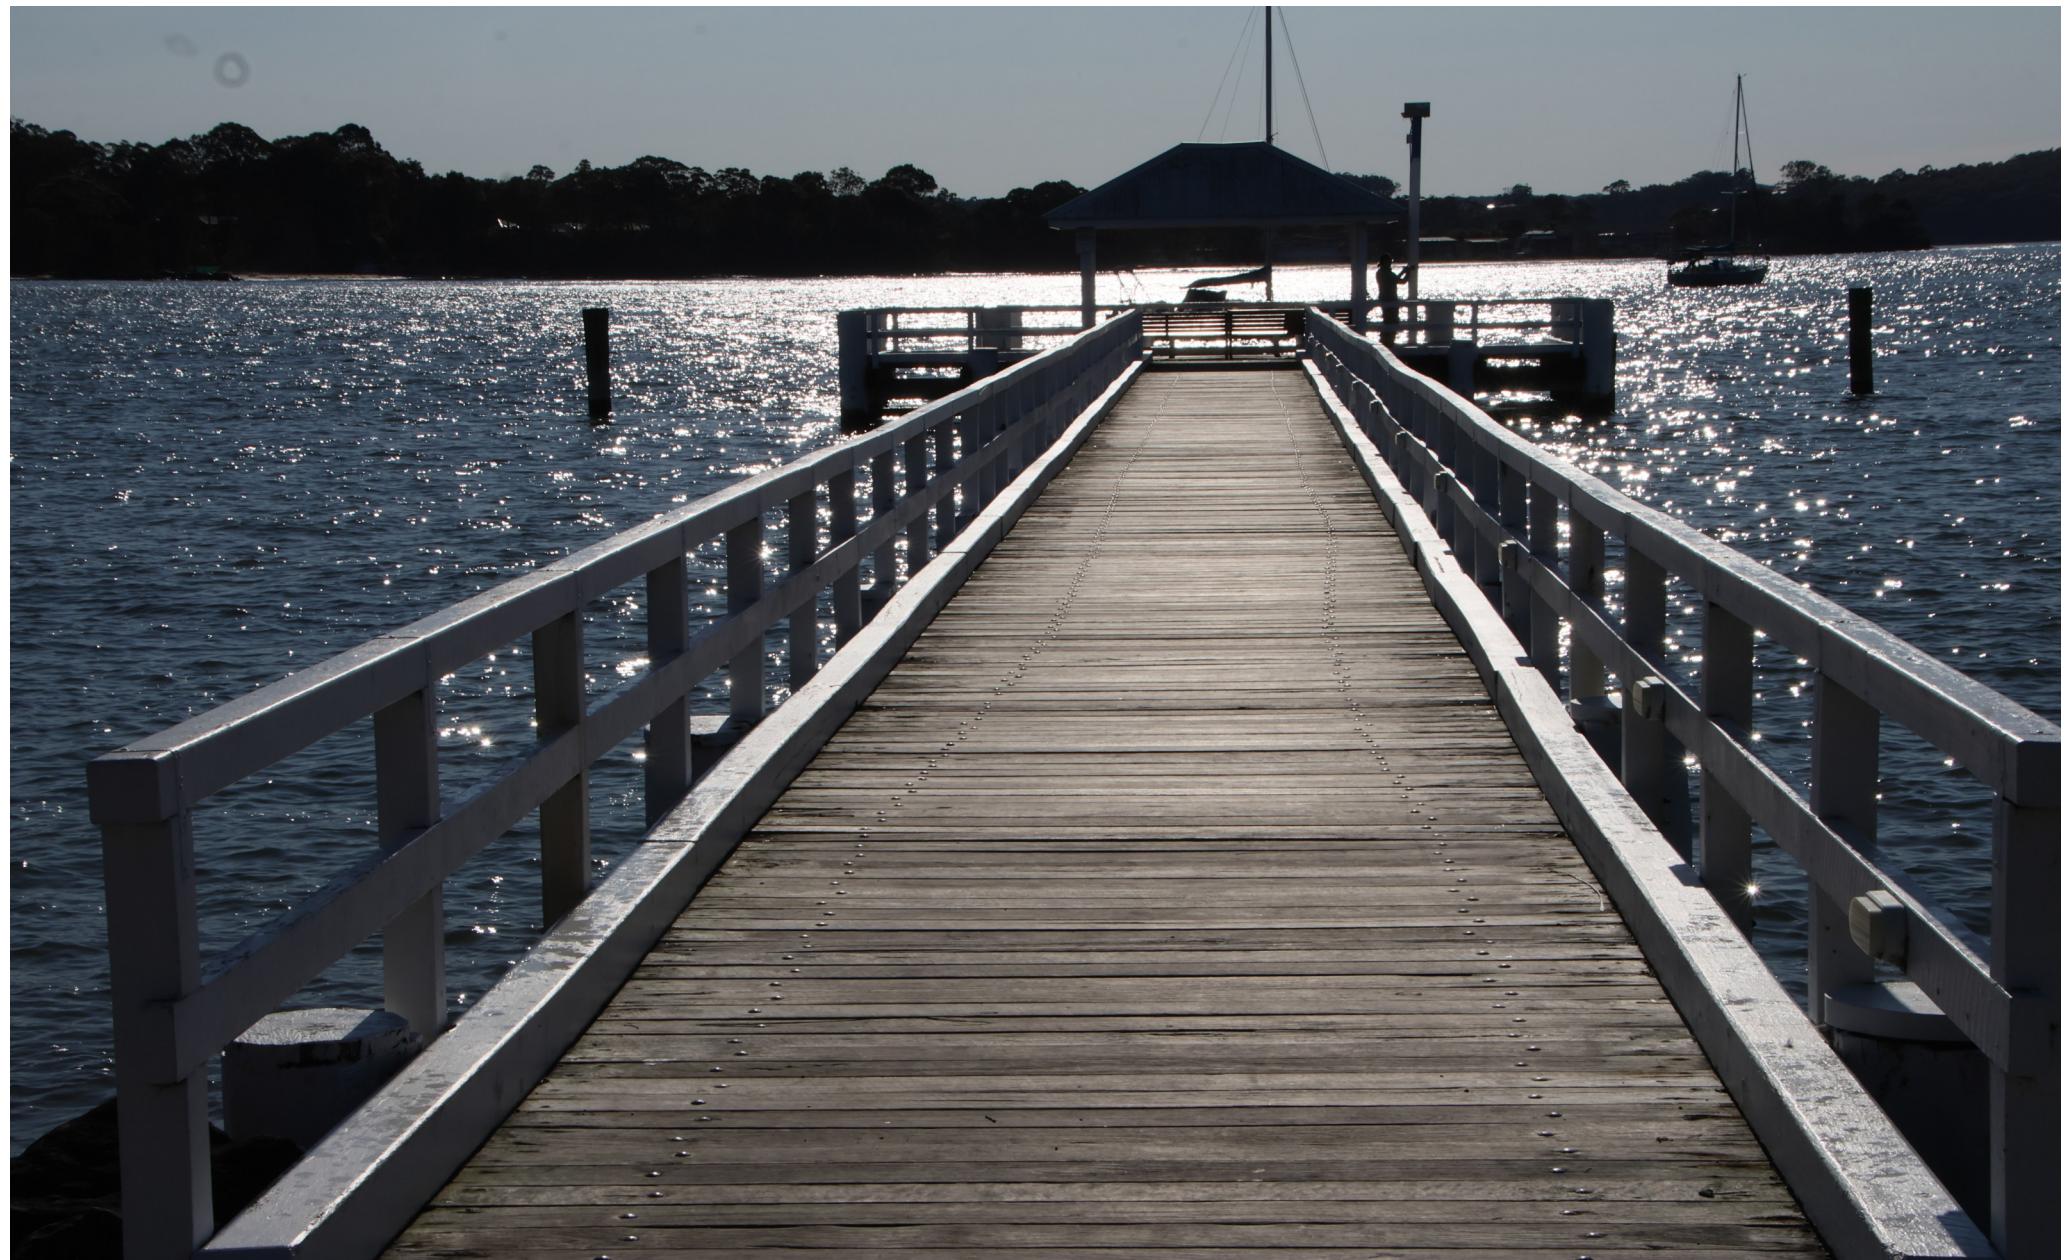

September

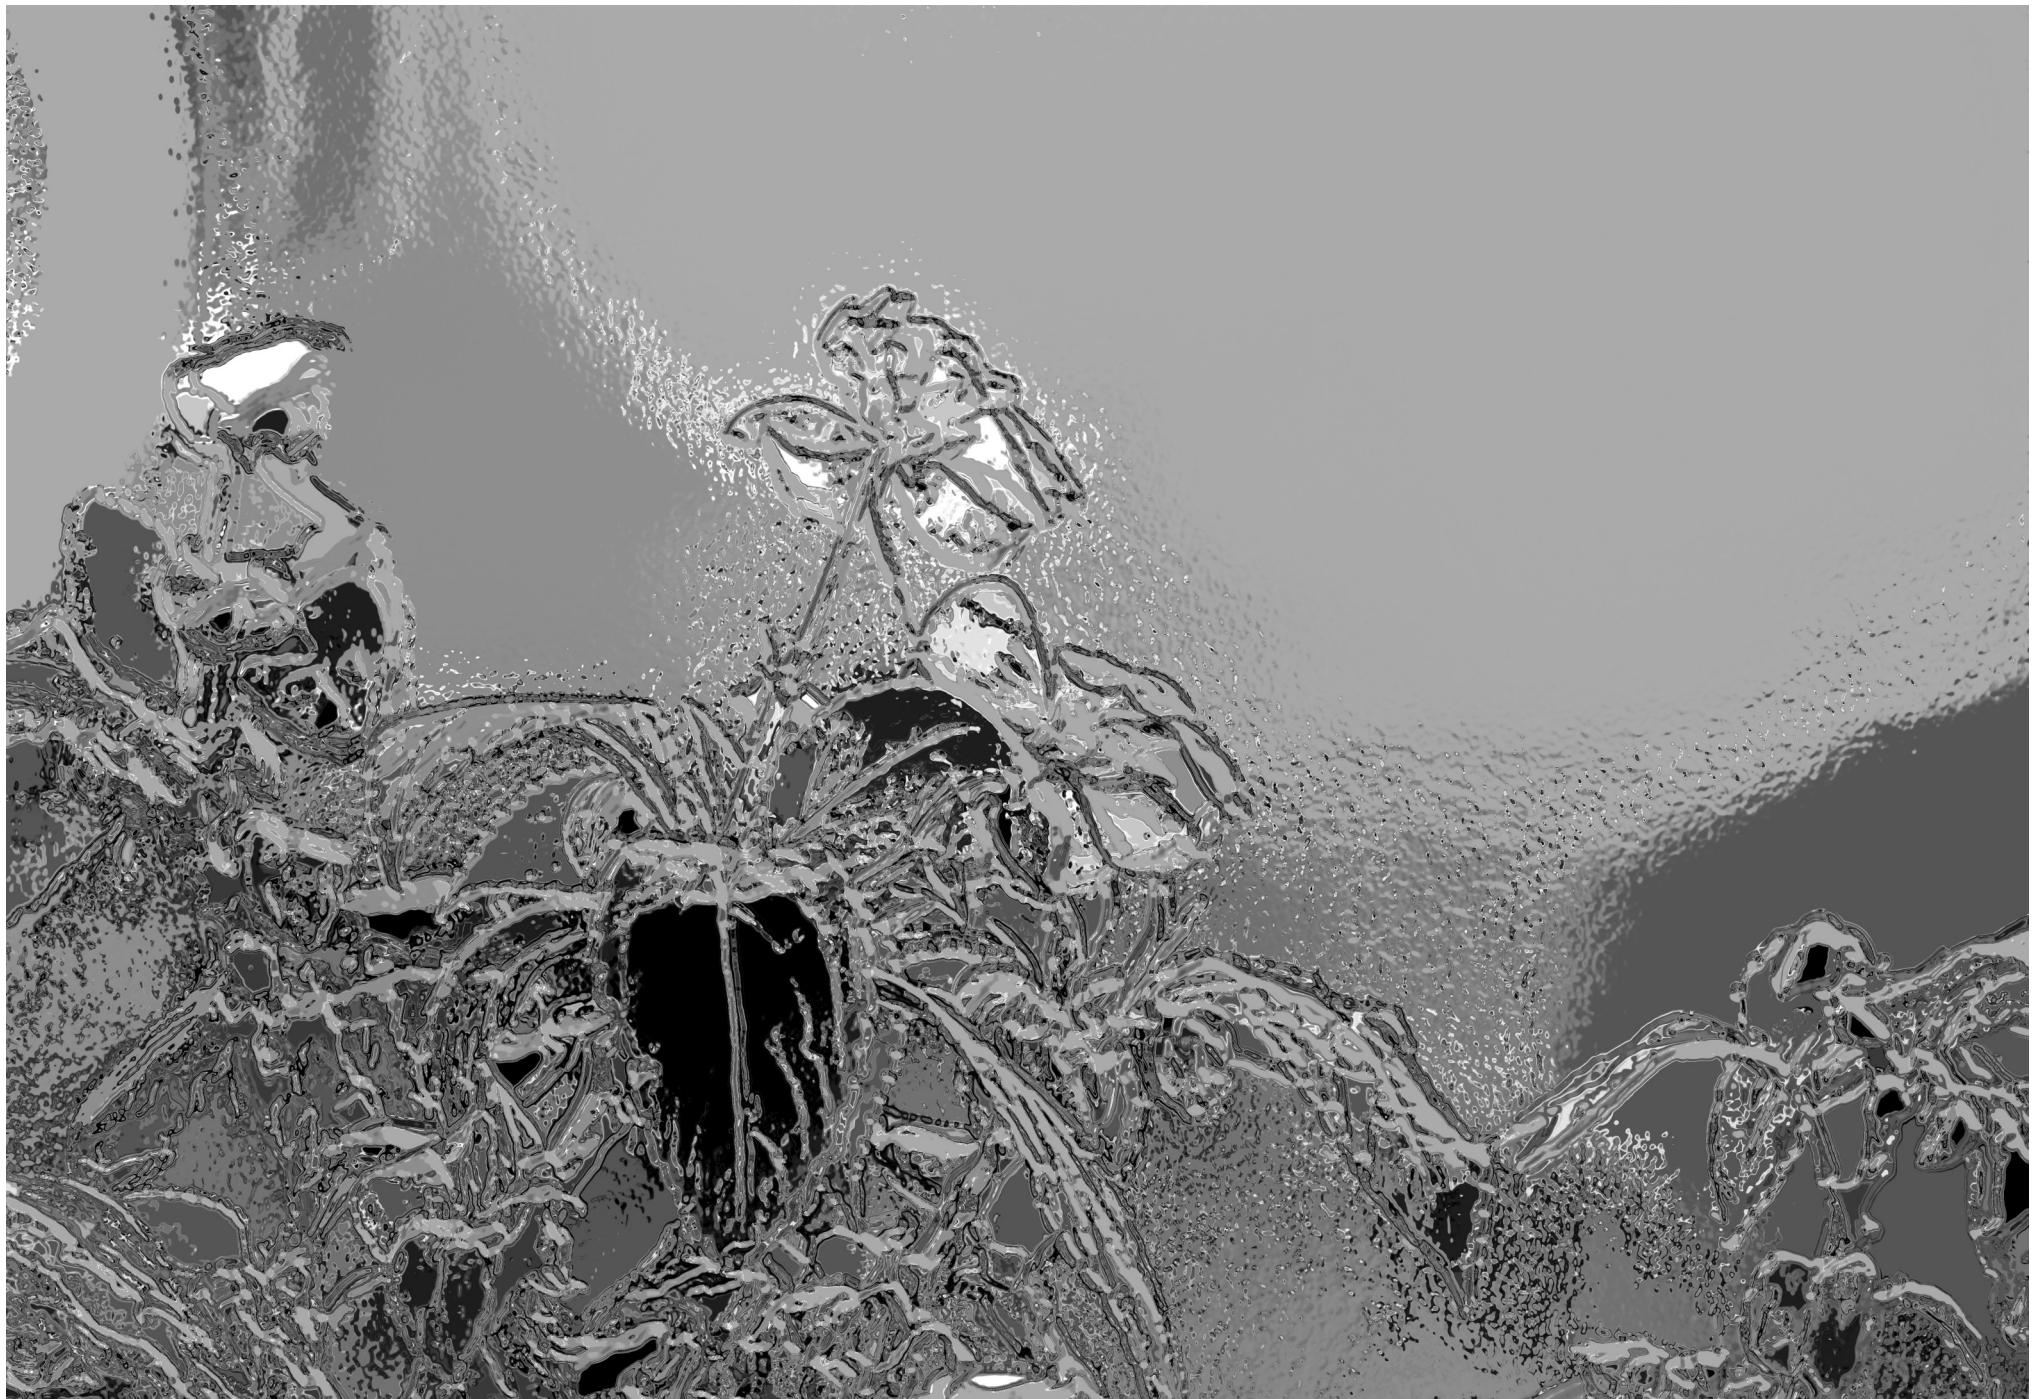

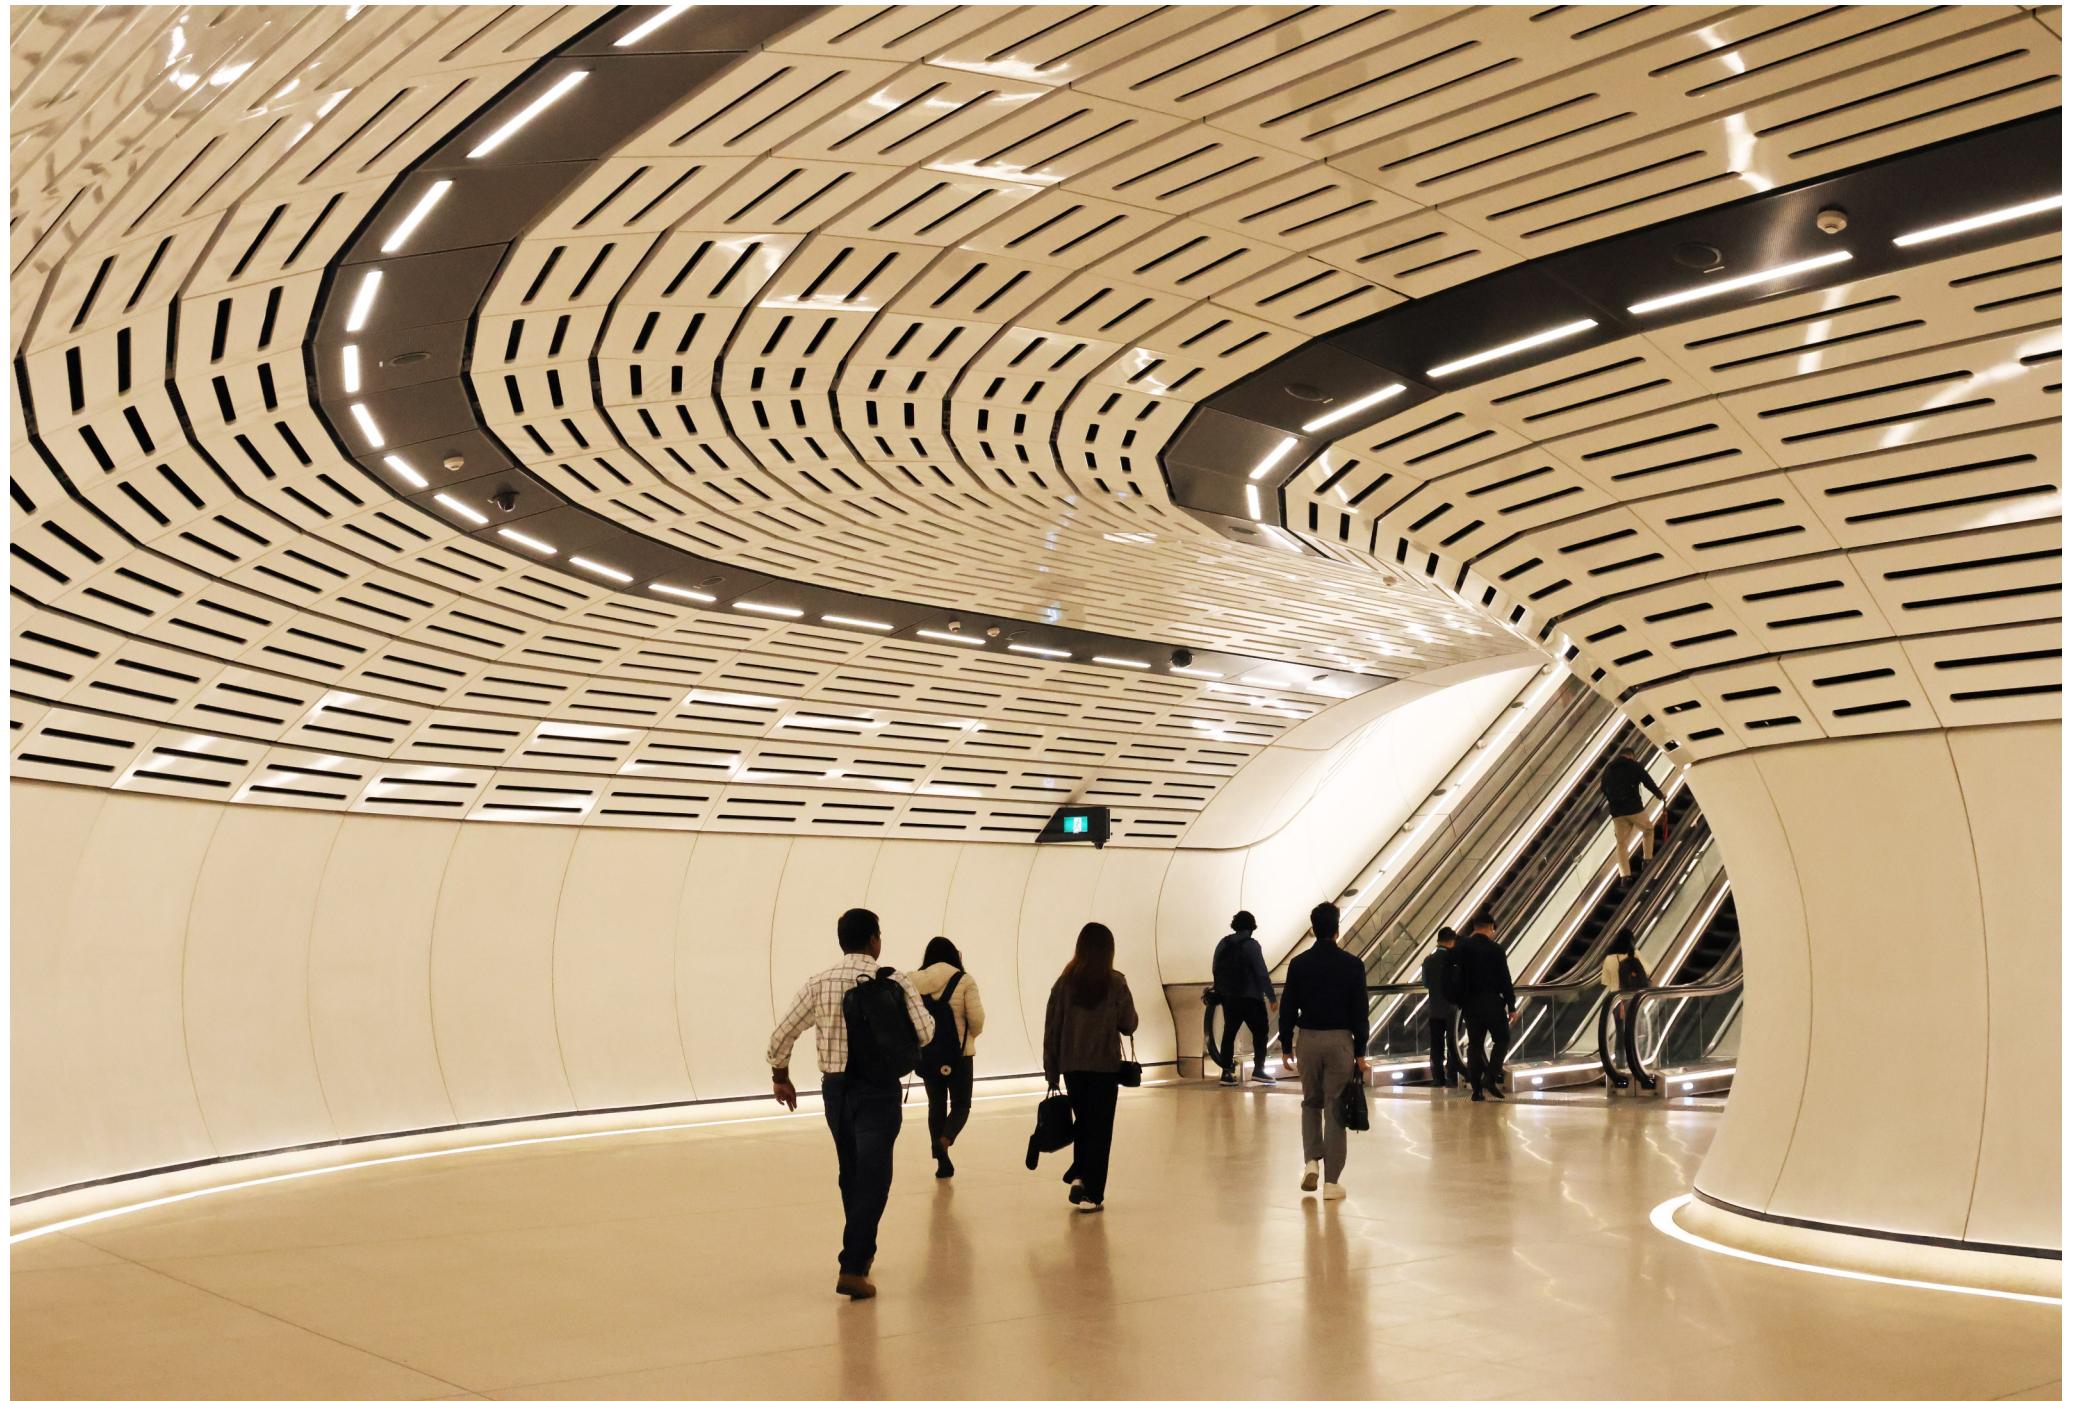

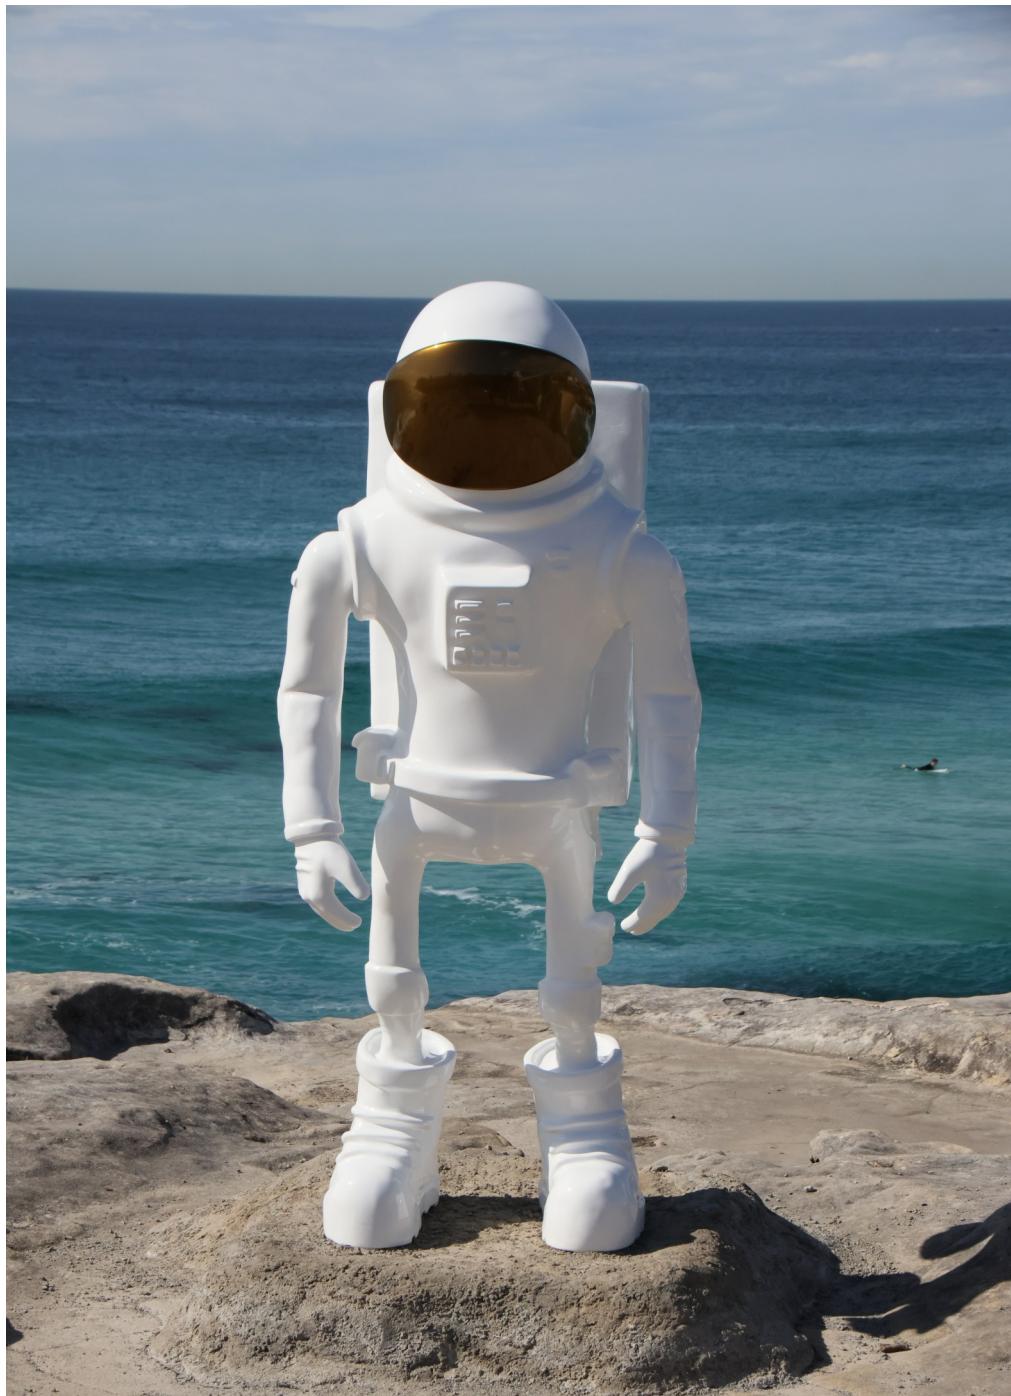

October

November

December

Have a truly happy holiday and come back refreshed for 2025

